About Meqnes

Entrepreneur Kamal Jahid was born in Morocco and later studied in Poland. He started his business, Meqnes, in Poland with his friend, David Liebers. They both had an interest in fashion and shared a passion for style and elegance.

Meqnes started by producing travel bags which continue to be its best-selling product. They are handmade from the finest Moroccan leather using skilled craftsmanship. Demand for the bags continues to grow. 5

Meqnes now sells a range of elegant fashion products, and the brand is recognised internationally. Its belts and laptop cases are growing in popularity. Every product is hand-stitched by skilled workers using high quality materials, which can be personalised with the owner's name or initials on request. 10

During the global health crisis Meqnes started to produce face masks. For every mask sold Meqnes donated another mask to a senior citizen in Poland.

Meqnes' product portfolio includes:

- travel bags 15
- belts
- face masks
- laptop cases
- scarves
- credit card holders. 20

Ethical behaviour in the fast-food market

The fast-food market has been criticised over the years for poor ethical behaviour. Some fast-food businesses are attempting to improve their image by using emotional branding to market themselves as responsible businesses that care for the environment. Many fast-food businesses now refer to social objectives in their publicity and advertising campaigns.

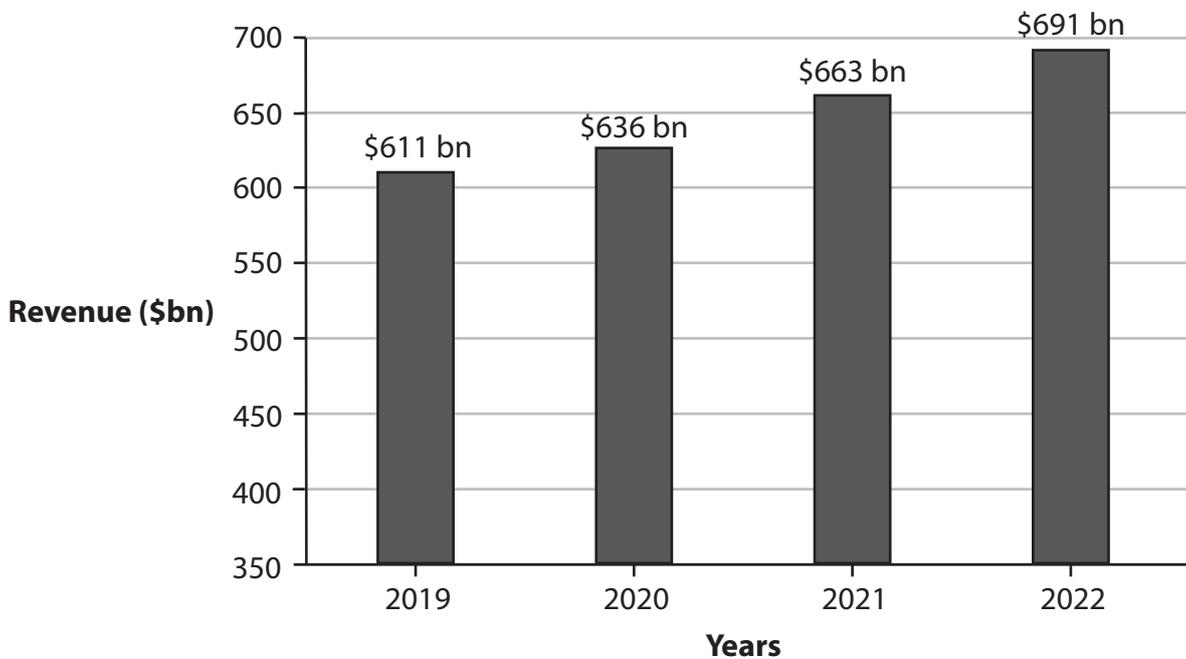

5

McDonald's has announced a commitment that 100% of its packaging will come from renewable or recycled sources by 2025. Burger King has promised to help protect the rainforests that are being destroyed to make way for farm animals. KFC announced it will donate any food that would have been wasted to charitable causes.
