

Level 1 Answer (Simple, basic ideas, limited development)

In my country, there are many popular places such as shopping malls, parks and famous buildings. People like visiting these places because they are relaxing and good for spending time with family and friends. Some tourists also visit historical places to learn about the culture.

One place I really enjoyed visiting was a large park near my city. I went there with my family and we walked around, took photos and had a picnic. It was a nice experience and I felt very relaxed.

Visiting places on your own can be good because you can do what you want and go anywhere you like. However, it can also be boring or unsafe if there is no one to help you.

Some people think tourism is destroying beautiful places. I agree because too many visitors can cause pollution and damage the environment. For example, beaches and historical places are often affected.

Some people think it is more exciting to explore places on the internet, but I prefer visiting in real life. The internet is useful, but it is not the same as actually being there.

Level 2 Answer (Clearer opinions, better linking, more development)

In my country, many places are popular with both local people and tourists, such as historic towns, famous buildings and large public parks. These places attract visitors because they are attractive, well-known and offer opportunities to relax, take photos or learn more about the country's history and culture.

One place that I really enjoyed visiting was a historical town in another part of the country. I went there with my family, and we spent time walking around the old streets, visiting museums and trying traditional food. The experience was enjoyable because the town had a unique atmosphere and helped me understand more about the past.

There are several advantages to visiting places on your own. For example, you have more freedom to plan your time and choose what interests you most. However, there are also disadvantages, such as feeling lonely or having no one to help if you face problems, which can make the experience less enjoyable.

Some people believe that tourism is destroying many of the world's most beautiful places. I agree to a certain extent, as overcrowding can lead to pollution and damage natural or historical sites. However, tourism can also be positive if it is well managed, as it can provide money to protect and maintain these places.

Finally, some people think it is more exciting to explore new places through the internet than in real life. Although the internet allows people to see many places easily, I believe real-life visits are more exciting because you can fully experience the environment and create stronger memories.